2026 Course List

Course Name		PRE-CONFERENCE CLASS N.F.P.A. Level 1 Confined Space Rescue
Length	24 Hours
Description	For personnel who perform entry rescue services to relatively uncomplicated permit spaces, this program meets minimum requirements of OSHA 1910.146 (k) and NFPA 1670/1006. The training agenda considers unique confined space hazards and complexities, response plans, and the rescue team building process among varied experience levels. Participants learn proper procedures for entry type rescue into unobstructed confined spaces where victims can be seen from the entry. Typically the spaces accommodate two or more rescuers with the victim, and the hazards are identified, isolated and controlled. This class involves extreme physical activity!

2026 Course List

Course Name		FF297 Think Fast! Tactics from the Officer's Seat
Length	4 Hours
Description	Today's fire service presents many unique challenges for the fire service officer. With homes and businesses being constructed with light weight trusses and/or engineered lumber, the strategy and tactics utilized while fighting fires in these type buildings can prove to be challenging and inherently dangerous. The strategical and tactical approaches used in years past must be revisited. As less experienced officers are promoted and the overall number of structure fires declining, this proves to be a two-edged sword. The new aspiring officers are not afforded the opportunity to gain the valuable experience that aids in good, safe decision-making as it relates to applying the proper strategies and tactics to a given incident. On the other hand, fire prevention, suppression systems as well as fire codes have proven to be successful in minimizing the number of fires. With that being said, an avenue to gain knowledge, skills and abilities are in great demand. In the "Think Fast! Tactics from the Officer's Seat" course, students will participate in a multifaceted approach to developing the proper strategy and tactics used throughout various types of emergency incidents. The class will be comprised of a lecture and discussion of the department's SOP's / SOG's. In addition, the use of simulation scenarios will be utilized to bring a realistic approach to the classroom. Basic as well as more complex simulated scenarios will be utilized. Each student will have the opportunity to act as the OIC (Officer in Charge) or be part of an Engine and/or Truck Company. This in turn will help build the valuable knowledge base needed while making decisions on actual emergency scenes.

2026 Course List

Course Name		FF302 Hazmat Technology for Situational Awareness
Length	4 Hours
Description	Hazardous materials incidents present a unique set of challenges for engine companies, where quick decision-making and unwavering situational awareness can mean the difference between containment and catastrophe. This course empowers first responders with essential tools and knowledge to navigate hazmat scenes safely and effectively. As technology continues to evolve, responders now have powerful resources right at their fingertips. This course highlights three indispensable tools: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> · ERG (Emergency Response Guidebook) A foundational resource offering initial response guidance for hazardous materials transportation incidents. It helps responders quickly identify hazards, determine isolation zones, and make informed protective action decisions. · NIOSH (National Institute Occupational Safety and Health) A compact yet comprehensive reference detailing chemical properties, exposure limits, personal protection measures, and symptoms of exposure—vital for safeguarding responders and the public. · CAMEO (Computer Aided Management Emergency Operations) A suite of applications developed by NOAA and the EPA to support planning and response. It combines chemical data with mapping tools and modeling to assess threats, predict plume movement, and coordinate multi-agency actions. By integrating these tools into daily operations and response strategies, engine companies and other first responders can enhance preparedness, protect lives, and reduce environmental impact during hazardous materials incidents.

Course Name		FF300 From Command to Firefighting: Using Thermal Imaging
Length	4 Hours
Description	Thermal imaging in today's fire service provides fire personnel with data to assist in the decision-making process. It is imperative personnel can not only obtain the data, but quickly interpret gathered data from the thermal imager. This course is designed to assist first arriving company/command officers with the 360-degree size up, as well as the on-going size up of the structure. The course also assists interior firefighting teams with interpreting data to facilitate rapidly locating and removing fire victims, locating flow paths, identifying rapidly deteriorating conditions inside the structure, and locating the seat of a fire and/or hidden fire in void spaces. Technology in thermal imaging has changed dramatically in recent years, thus providing fire personnel an effective tool to combat structural fires more safely. After completion of this course, personnel will be able to gather and interpret data obtained from the thermal imager, begin development of strategies and tactics that provide a safer approach to victim rescue and suppression of fire within a structure.

2026 Course List

Course Name		FF287 Let's Talk Electric Vehicle Safety
Length	4 Hours
Description	In today's constantly evolving Fire and Emergency Services world we must look at how technology is affecting how we respond to emergencies in our communities. Our goal for everyone is that we go home safe after each shift. Therefore, we must continue to train like our lives depend on it because they do. As our country continues to reduce its dependence on fossil fuels and finds new alternatives, we in the fire service must also identify different ways to educate ourselves to these new technologies. That is why, in this class, we are looking at plug-in electric vehicles. These types of vehicles and their technology are challenging to our responders and must be better understood to maintain a safe environment. To accomplish this, we will look at the history of electric vehicles from the past to the present. The difference between the all-electric plug-in vs the hybrid-electric plug-in. What the state's plan is for electric vehicles and their partnerships to accomplish its goals. Also infrastructure, both public and residential, that supports the electric vehicle ownership. Then we will explore the response to emergencies involving plug-in electric vehicles. This will include both vehicle fires and crashes. The goal is to identify the special hazards that electric vehicle technology present to responders today. In this section we will look at how the electrical system of the vehicle must be addressed to ensure that we have a safe scene and are able to mitigate the emergency.
